5. PROVOST’S REPORT

The Faculty Senate President reported on the following:

Provost Ortega is meeting with President Schmidly, Curt Porter, Andrew Cullen, and the deans to develop this year’s budget. There will be thoughtfulness to minimize the impact on academic budgets.

There will be approximately a five percent hit on the budgets of most special projects.

The overall impact on the Instruction and General (I&G) budget was approximately 2.4%.

The University has the flexibility to one-time move capital budgets to fill in the shortfalls of I&G.

There is a continuing underfunding of utility bills of approximately $3 million.

Seven hundred thousand dollars has been allocated to new Teaching Assistant and Graduate Assistant lines. There is also a $500,000 increase in overall college operating budgets.

There were a series of things that were funded with one-time budgets. The challenge will be to transform it into recurring funding.
There are several different tuition models that are being considered in attempt to break even. Presently, academic colleges are in the one percent or less range for reduction.

There will likely be at least one special session of the state legislature, with a possibility of two special sessions. There is also the possibility of mid-year budget rescissions. The pause and hold on hiring will continue. Nobody has been laid off as a result of the pause and hold strategy.

After President Schmidly has had an opportunity to work with the deans, he will update his budget website.

In late April, Provost Ortega will organize a meeting with deans and department chairs to develop a plan and a timeline for better communication between faculty and the administration. The six suggestions from the Faculty Senate will be part of the plan or a foundation for a plan.

Senator Virginia Shipman suggested that deans and department heads communicate with their faculty after meeting with administration. Deans should meet with their faculty to keep them updated. An audience member suggested that a statement or a plan should be developed before the accreditation site visit in April. Provost Ortega replied that meeting before the site visit is not possible.

The Provost stated how would she know if effective communication had taken place? Knowing the answer would aid in facilitating communication between the faculty and on up the chain. Provost Ortega asked what are the key pieces of information missing that faculty need to function effectively.

A senator suggested that the university ask the accreditors for national strategies.

Senator Ed DeSantis suggested that each department chair and in turn each dean, describe how they communicate with members of their department and do they treat everyone equally.

Provost Ortega does not want another 90 minute meeting where the deans, faculty, etc., are told what to do. She wants to find a way to have a constructive meeting that is open, honest, candid, and polite.

Perhaps there should be a website that has questions and suggestions on communication.

A senator commented that chairs often do not communicate in an attempt to keep from overwhelming their faculty. There needs to be an efficient mechanism to communicate. One chair emails his faculty once per week to keep them informed of issues in between their faculty meetings. Another department posts information and news to their intranet, but it is often weeks out of date.

6. FACULY SENATE PRESIDENT'S REPORT
The Faculty Senate President reported on the following:

Please nominate yourself or someone else to run to serve on the 2009-2010 Operations Committee or the 2009-2010 President-Elect.

President Snell met with President Schmidly on the Faculty Senate Six Points. President Schmidly said that President Snell and the senate should work with Provost Ortega on figuring out how to implement the six points.
There are two classes of decisions that need to be made at UNM. The operational decisions have to be made very quickly. Policy decisions can withstand the grinding process of discussion, voting, revising, etc. Policy decisions should be debated by the senate.

President-Elect Doug Fields presented an update on the audit that was called for by the general faculty. The questions are being organized for the audit. The audit is not a financial audit, it is a program audit. In a program audit, the money should be able to be tracked and determined where it went. The time-frame for the program audit should cover fiscal year 2003 through fiscal year 2009.

11. ACCREDITATION
Vice Provost Wynn Goering presented an update on the 2009 university accreditation. The North Central Association is now the Higher Learning Commission. The accreditation covers main campus, the Health Sciences Center, and all the branch campuses. The accreditation is the foundation of where UNM gets its credibility. Accreditation enables the university to receive loans, grants, etc. The site visit will be in two weeks and the schedule is not yet finalized. The accreditors will meet with the governance bodies at UNM (AF&T, Committee on Governance, and the Faculty Senate Operations Committee), the deans, associate deans, and the vice presidents.

The accreditation will not result in an up or down vote. It will determine what is required of the university to maintain its accreditation.

The faculty role is to read the self-study. If interviewed, the faculty should provide full disclosure. The HLC is aware of the issues that are facing UNM.
12. RESEARCH POLICY COMMITTEE REPORT
Research Policy Committee Chair Debra Helitzer provided a brief report on the committee. There are many new members. Currently the committee is reviewing its charge. The current charge is extremely broad and not very feasible. There is overlap between the RPC and the Executive Research Advisory Committee (ERAC). The co-chairs of ERAC spoke to the RPC regarding the ERAC charge. The formation of ERAC did not involve anyone from the RPC. ERAC invited RPC to work with them.

13. 2009-2010 ACADEMIC YEAR HEALTH INSURANCE BENEFITS
Vice President for Human Resources Helen Gonzales presented the following PowerPoint that describes the health insurance benefits for 2009-2010. UNM has moved to self-insurance for healthcare. UNM’s dental benefit program went to self-funding last year. Some examples of other entities that are self insured are the State of New Mexico, the City of Albuquerque and Albuquerque Public Schools. The move to self insurance will result in no premium increase for 2009-2010.
